Eastertide At The Seashore

Health Preserative as well as Fashionable

The widely increasing idea of spending the Easter holidays amidst the pure saline azone of the seaside is one of the instances where fashion co-operates well with medical science.

It originated in the fad of a few owners of seaside cottages opening their houses for themselves and invited guests during Easter week; but the good results were so apparent, and their example followed by such numbers, that the annual Easter parade on Atlantic City's boardwalk now far surpasses the former glories of the Easter-day show on Fifth avenue, New York, or the after-church parade on Walnut street, Philadelphia.

Those who desire to arrive at Atlantic City in good time, with a comfortable mind and body, should be careful to go by the Reading System's swift well-equipped express trains leaving Chestnut street and South street Ferries, Philadelphia, at convenient intervals. Pullman parlor cars are attached to all express trains.

To accommodate their patrons, the Reading System has arranged for the following additional fast trains to supplement the regular schedule:

Leave Philadelphia, Saturdays, March 26 and April 2, at 1 P. M.; Sunday, April 3, at 8 A. M.

Leave Atlantic City, Sunday, April 3, 5.30 and 9,30 P. M.; Monday, April 4, 7 A. M.

To those desiring to spend Easter at Cape May, Ocean City, or Sea Isle City, the Reading System offers a convenient, well-arranged schedule; Pullman parlor cars to and from Cape May on weekday trains leaving Philadelphia 4.15 P. M. and Cape May 7.30 A. M.

The Advance Detail

(Article 1 in the Quartermaster's Series)

WILLIAM C. GRETZINGER, Captain and Quartermaster, Twelfth Infantry

ONE of the most interesting, and sometimes one of the most perplexing features of the Quartermaster's Department in the National Guard of Pennsylvania, is "The Advance Detail," usually designated in Official Order as a "Camping Party." It is the duty generally of such "detail" or company party to proceed to the site selected for the annual Encampment and prepare the Camp for the arrival of the Regiment. Generally such party arrives at the Company ground from one to three days prior to the regular opening of Camp. It is usually in command of a Commissioned Officer of the grade of First Lieutenant with a Second Lieutenant as an assistant, and with the Quartermaster for the time having general oversight of all. Its efficiency is dependent very largely upon the officer in charge and the care exercised in selecting the "Non-Coms." and the enlisted men of the party. The service being voluntary and the duties onerous, do not always bring about the highest degree of efficiency. Sometimes it seems as if it might be wiser to do away with the detail altogether and have the work prepared by a half-dozen, good, able-bodied men taken from the laboring class, or selected with care from the personnel of the enlisted men of the Regiment. But then one must bear in mind that the object of a Summer Camp is growing more and more to be a place of instruction rather than an outing and that the men go there not alone for fun but to learn the routine of Camp life and to become conversant with the duties and sacrifices of a soldier. The advance detail, consisting of fifty to seventy-five men is sometimes a body too unwieldy to handle and get the best results---it is often made up of a lot of fellows who volunteer their services because they see in it a good time, and if a few dissipated men per chance get on the detail, the life of the Commander of the party is made miserable and the infection of their presence is disastrous, and the usefulness of the party is depreciated accordingly. It is a very difficult thing to get men to do hard work, such as is demanded of an advance detail when they know that they are not being paid for it. The fact also that the men are volunteers on the detail, greatly impairs discipline, for one can scarcely inflict punishment on another man for not putting his entire strength into the service when he knows that no pay is forthcoming for said service, and when he knows that such punishment would affect the balance of the party to its great disadvantage.

Some regiments use a full company to do the work of the advance detail. This plan has many objections, chief among which is the indisposition of the men to fall into the regular routine of camp work when the regiment arrives. The men feeling that they already have done their share of duty by having performed the work of the advance detail, think that they should be relieved from guard duty, and even in some cases want to be excused from drill and parade. A more important objection, however, is the fact that the company plan does not fully carry out the idea of instruction, for the men being all from the same command do not have the proper opportunity of disseminating the knowledge and experience they may attain as to camp construction to the same extent as a party of men selected from all the companies in a regiment. Each company in every regiment should have a squad thoroughly conversant and drilled in camp construction. It is just as important in the routine of a soldier's duty to know the elements of camp construction, as it is for him to know his "general orders." A guardsman should be an "all-around" soldier.

Capt. William C. Gretzinger, 12th Infantry

Now what is the efficiency of the advance detail? If its object is simply to get the Camp ready for the arrival of the regiment, without bearing in mind the knowledge and experience that comes from the work involved, then the detail had better be dispensed with and the plan of employing only a few men adopted. Believing, however, that it serves a higher purpose, and believing also that the work of the advance detail is a school of instruction rather than a mere perfunctory service, the Quartermaster should see that the detail is made up of picked men, that each squad be in charge of a good corporal, and that there be a duty sergeant of intelligence and character detailed as a member of the party. The work of the party should be planned in detail so that it is not done in a slipshod, haphazard way, but with the highest degree of system. In the unloading of baggage, the distribution of equipage, the piling of canvas, the men should be taught that system is the first essential of good soldiery. They should be taught staking in its several branches and above all the use of the right kind of stakes. It would be well to place in the hands of each member of the detail a set of instructions, covering the use of the proper kind of stakes, how to drive them, how to align them and how to exercise care so as to avoid the least possible "expenditure" in driving them. There should also be provided for each man on the detail, when such plan is possible, a blue print plan of the camp, showing all the distances—not only of the streets, distance between tents, but the distances between the stakes as well, for it is quite as important that the well made, orderly camp is the one that is laid out with the same precision and care in staking and tent distances as is exercised in planning the width of any of the streets. That indeed is a slovenly camp where the stakes are driven in irregularly, where some stakes of the same size are driven deeper than others, and especially when the wrong kind of stakes are used. The bane of the Quartermaster is to have on his detail some fellow who has served in the Regular Army, and who not only persists in driving his own stakes at the wrong angle, but insists in getting the men in his squad to do the same, thereby causing double work and endless trouble. To offset such influence, the Quartermaster should insist on the work being done all over and the stakes driven the "National Guard Way." These Regular Army fellows always want to dig ditches their way, haul the lightest kind of a load, and in many ways serve to demoralize a detail, and especially is their influence harmful in teaching the men what constitutes a soldier's working day, which according to a soldier's ideas is to do as little work as possible in a day. Now these men in the Guard are generally those fellows who served in the Regular Army a few months in the Spanish War, just long enough to learn nothing, one might almost say. I do not wish to depreciate the value of the Regular Army men, enlisted or otherwise, sent to the Summer Camp to instruct the Guardsmen. They are of a different type, generally intelligent and with full knowledge of their duties, and possessing the power to impart helpful and needful instruction.

An advance detail that not only performs its work well of laying out the camp, and of putting things to rights for the arrival of the regiment, but also imbibes the necessary knowledge of laying out a camp, erect tentage, handle equipage, and in fact learn all those things that are essential to the health and comfort of the camp, can become a very useful body, for they not only secure the experiences themselves, but they can impart it to others and if the regiment is called suddenly into the field, either to do riot or police duty, or in time of insurrection or war, they will be well equipped in facilitating camp construction.

A regimental quartermaster should be so qualified, so that upon sudden call, without even the use of a tape, should such item not be handy, he could lay out a camp on short notice, and so far as the topography permits, be able to lay it out in such a way that it compares with the general distances and plans laid down by the division quartermaster. An ideal quartermaster is one who has the entire camp plan in his head, so that he can shut his eyes and picture his camp before him, distances, spaces, staking and all. By making the advance detail a school of instruction instead of only a useful appendage, a quartermaster can increase the efficiency of his own department and in general raise the standard of his regiment thereby. For that regiment that knows best how to take care of itself, how to look out for those things that add to its comfort without infringing on the rights of others, generally has a care for its own health, takes pride in its standing as a military organization and reflects credit upon the State whose standard it is sworn to uphold.

Official Proceedings of the Meeting of the Dep't of Rifle Practice

A meeting of the Department of Rifle Practice of the National Guard of Pennsylvania was held in the Supreme Court Room, Post Office Building, Harrisburg, Pa., on Wednesday, March 9, 1904.

Meeting called to order by Colonel Patterson, General Inspector of Rifle Practice, at 2.40 P. M.

Moved and seconded that Major Darte act as secretary of the meeting. Carried.

Those present at the afternoon session were Colonel Patterson, General Inspector of Rifle Practice; Lieut. Colonel Selden, Division I. R. P.; Major Darte, Ordnance Officer, Third Brigade; Capt. Bergstresser, I. R. P., Eighth Regt.; Capt. Wollmuth, I. R. P., Fourth Regt.; Capt. Shields, I. R. P., Fourteenth Regt.; Capt. Thompson, I. R. P., Tenth Regt.; Capt. Godcharles, I. R. P., Twelfth Regt.; Capt. Bennett, I. R. P., Ninth Regt.; Capt. Riddle, Commissary and Acting I. R. P., Eighteenth Regt.; Capt. Mehard, I. R. P., First Regt.; Capt. Goddard, I. R. P., Sixth Regt.; Capt. Foulke, I. R. P., Second Regt.; Capt. Jones, Sheridan Troop; First Lieut. Rambo, Troop A; First Lieut. Nicodemus, Governor's Troop; First Lieut. Wood, Second City Troop.

There were also present Brigadier General Thomas J. Stewart, Adjutant General; Major Gilfoile, U. S. A.; Capt. Leesack, U. S. A.; Lieut. Colonel Wiliam F. Richardson, Division Quartermaster; Colonel Rutledge, Eighteenth Regt.; Colonel Hutchinson, Eighth Regt.; Capt. Ott, Governor's Troop; B. W. Demming, Chief Clerk to the Adjutant General.

(For convenience of reference I now add to the list of names of those who were present at the evening session only: Major Chew, Ordnance Officer, First Brigade; Captain Holly, U. S. A.; Mr. Wharton, Private Secretary to the Governor.)

Inspectors were called upon to report as to whether or not their ranges would be in a fit condition to open on the first day of April, 1904, and as to the amount of last year's ammunition not expended.

Capt. Bergstresser, Eighth Regt., reports that his range will not be in a fit condition to open on account of the swampy condition of the land over which the same is laid out. That he has had no reports from the captains as to the amount of ammunition not expended.

Capt. Wollmuth, Fourth Regt., reports that he will be able to open his range on the first of April next. That he has had no reports from the captains as to the amount of the ammunition not expended.

Capt. Thompson, Tenth Regt., reports that he will be able to open his range by April first next. That he has no last year's ammunition.

Capt. Shields, Fourteenth Regt., reports that it is uncertain whether or not he can open his range by the first of April, as it depends largely upon the weather. That he has about a thousand rounds per company of ammunition.

Lieut. Rambo, Troop A, reports that he can open his range on the first of April. That he has about a thousand rounds of ammunition. That the Troop has held indoor rifle practice.

Lieut. Nicodemus, Governor's Troop, reports that in his opinion he will not be able to open his range by the first of April, it depending largely upon the weather. That he has about three hundred rounds of ammunition. That the Troop has had no indoor practice.

Capt. Godcharles, Twelfth Regt., reports that he will not be able to open his range by the first of April, as they are nearly all laid out over cultivated ground. That he has had no report of the amount of ammunition not expended. That one company of his regiment has had indoor practice.

Capt. Riddle, Eighteenth Regt., reports that he will not be able to open his range by the first of April. That he has no last year's ammunition. That his regiment has had no indoor rifle practice.

Capt. Bennett, Ninth Regt., reports that he will not be able to open his range by the first of April. That he has had no report as to unexpended ammunition. That his regiment has had some indoor rifle practice.

Capt. Mehard, First Regt., reports that he will be able to open his range by the first of April. That he has about 3000 rounds of last year's ammunition. That his regiment has had some indoor rifle practice.

Capt. Goddard, Sixth Regt., reports that he will be able to open his range by the first of April. That he has no last year's ammunition. That his regiment has had considerable and very successful indoor practice.

Lieut. Wood, Second City Troop, reports that he will be able to open his range by the first of April. That he has no last year's ammunition except such as is held in reserve for emergency. That he has completed arrangements for indoor rifle practice and that his troop will at once begin such practice.

Capt. Foulke reports that he will be able to open his range on the first of April. That he has no last year's ammunition. That he has had very successful indoor practice.

General Stewart called upon Major Gilfoile, who discussed the best methods of qualifying men and improving marksmanship among the men.

Capt. Leesack made a short talk upon ammunition.

Lieut. Colonel Richardson explained his method of constructing an indoor range.

General discussion had as to ammunition, ranges, etc.

Discussion had as to the continuity of qualification of those who qualified as a third class marksman in the year 1903. Determined that they lose only one year of continuous qualification, providing they make a qualification score next year entitling them to a decoration.

Discussion as to the scores required in the different classes of marksmen. Determined that no change be made except as to the Third Class marksmen. The determination of what score shall be required for Third Class postponed until evening session.

Discussion had as to restriction of number of scores to be fired by each man. Determined that the number of scores be left to the discretion of the commanding officer.

Discussion had as to whether or not a man who has qualified, but who is not a member of the Guard at the time of presentation of the decorations, is entitled to said decoration. Determined that he is not unless he was a member of the Guard at the close of the rifle season.

Discussion had as to modifying the order which requires the certificate of an officer to a score and which requires an officer to be present when certain scores are made. Deferred until evening session for determination. (No action taken at evening session.)

Discussion had as to modification of the order in regard to turning in of score sheets by commanders of companies to the Inspectors of Rifle Practice. Determined that company commanders retain all score sheets until the end of the season, when they shall return to the Inspector one score sheet for each man, containing the two best scores of that man.

Moved and seconded that an order be issued that outdoor rifle ranges be opened on the first day of April, 1904. Carried.

Return of rifle practice books produced and examined.

Meeting adjourned to meet at Harrisburg Club at 6.30 P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

Meeting convened in the Banquet Hall of the Harrisburg Club at 6.30, at which time a splendid dinner was partaken of and some little business transacted.

Colonel Patterson presided.

Moved and seconded that the score necessary to qualify a member of the National Guard of Pennsylvania as a Third Class Marksman shall be at least fifty, to be made in two scores of five shots each at 200 yards, 300 yards and 500 yards, at least fifteen points to be made in said two scores at 200 yards before proceeding to 300 yards, at least 15 points to be made in the same manner at 300 yards before proceeding to 500 yards. Carried.

Colonel Patterson then acted as toastmaster and called upon each person present for a few remarks.

Splendid, patriotic speeches were made by General Stewart, Major Gilfoile, Capt. Holly, Mr. Wharton, Col. Selden, Col. Richardson, Major Chew and many others, while each one called upon expressed some thoughts and ideas interesting and instructive to the members of the Department of Rifle Practice of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, and an evening of rare entertainment, good fellowship and advantage was enjoyed by all.

FRANK G. DARTE, Secretary,

Capt. Fred A. Godcharles

Captain Fred A. Godcharles, Twelfth Infantry, the subject of our sketch, was born in Northumberland, Northumberland county, June 3, 1872. He was graduated from the Milton High School in May, 1888, and entered Lafayette College and graduated as Electrical Engineer in 1893. From then until November, 1895, he was Assistant Superintendent of the Electrical Construction Bureau, City Hall, Philadelphia, Pa., a position he resigned to become associated with his father and brother in the manufacture of nails and iron. He is at present title member of the firm and resides in Milton. Captain Godcharles comes from a military family, his father having served in the Union Army for three years with distinction and was twice wounded. When the call came for volunteers during the Spanish-American War, young Godcharles was one of the first to respond to his Nation's cause. He enlisted in Company C, Twelfth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, May 12, 1898. He was subsequently transferred to General Gobin's Staff as an Assistant to the Commissary, and the valuable services rendered while in that Department was highly appreciated by his superiors. At the reorganization of the Guard, he was appointed Inspector of Rifle Practice with the rank of First Lieutenant by Colonel Coryell and subsequently re-appointed by Colonel C. M. Clement, who succeeded to the command of the time-honored Twelfth Infantry. This position he has filled with great credit. Being an expert marksman, he has been able to coach and develop some of the best shots in the regiment.

He has also been an active and aggressive worker in the Sons of Veterans since 1893, and is one of the prominent leaders at the Division and National Encampments.

He is also connected with the Masonic Order, being Worshipful Master of Milton Lodge, No. 256 F. & A. M. He is a Knight Templar, a Mystic Shriner and a Thirty-second Degree Consistory Member.

His long, continued and effective political work, coupled with sterling integrity and good judgment in business affairs secured for Capt. Godcharles his party's nomination for the Legislature in 1900, a position to which he was elected in a Democratic County. His record as a member of this honorable body was spotless. Captain Godcharles gained quite an enviable reputation as a ready and concise speaker on the floor of the House and was greatly esteemed by all of his constituents. He has risen to be a very strong factor in his Senatorial district and seems to be the popular choice for State Senator. In this aspiration his many military friends throughout the State wish him every success.

MAJOR LUCIEN M. WILER, of the Sixth Infantry, is making a strenuous effort to build an armory in West Philadelphia and locate his battalion in that section. Colonel Coryell is heartily in accord with the movement and is lending his legal advice to the project. The present peculiar armory conditions of the battalion are anything but satisfactory. The building was constructed and owned by the Caledonian Club, who found it an expensive proposition to run. They unloaded the building with a mortgage of about $85,000 on the Trustees of the Philadelphia Battalion of the Sixth Infantry and the title was vested in Capt. Harry J. Mihlbauer who until recently was the Superintendent of the Armory.

In approximate figures the battalion expenses are $5,000 per year or about $1250 per company. The State and City appropriations for armory purposes amounts to $2800. It is stated that a revenue of $200 per month is received for "club membership" or persons using the building for athletic purposes. These persons are principally supporters of the old Caledonian Association. Regimental Headquarters also pays an annual rental of $100. At this rate the battalion gains a net profit of about $300 per annum. It would appear from these figures that the wily Scotchman is ahead of the game. He is still the practical owner of the building and the "club membership," which amounts to $2,400, is all that he is required to put up to run the place.

The building as an armory is exempt from taxation. The City also furnishes fuel, light and electrical connections. The place is entirely inadequate for military purposes. The drill floor is scarcely large enough to manoeuvre a platoon and the company quarters as well as the quartermaster facilities are wretched. It is earnestly hoped that Major Wiler will be eminently successful in his undertaking. His rare executive and military abilities are bound to bring about a greatly improved condition of affairs in this organization.

THE Regimental Commanders who were hopeful of the Guard attending the St. Louis Exposition will regret to learn that the plan is neither practicable nor feasible, as a movement of this kind would cost the State at least $100,000, and there is no provision made for such purpose. It is also pointed out that many of the men would find it impossible to leave their employment for a week's trip to St. Louis and the annual tour of duty which in all probability will be held at Gettysburg from the twenty-third of July to the thirty-first inclusive.

The Commander-in-Chief accompanied by his Staff, with probably an additional escort of cavalry will attend the Pennsylvania Day ceremonies, which will be held on the seventeenth of August.

It is stated that Captain Barclay H. Warburton is making a strong effort to have Troop A represented on this occasion. In that event they will appear in the handsome new dress uniform of the Army.

NOTES

The National and Inter-State Rifle Matches this season will likely be held in the middle west in place of Sea Girt. Many of the prominent officials of the Department of Rifle Practice favor this change.

The Drill Hall Committee of the Eighteenth Infantry gave a very successful smoker and house warming on Saturday, March 26. A large number of out of town officers were present and an excellent entertainment was presented. Everyone seemed to have an enjoyable time and many good wishes were expressed for the future of Colonel Rutledge's command.

Paintings of the three commanders of the Second Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, will shortly adorn the walls of the quarters. These are Captains Edwards, Tilghman and Schermerhorn.

Captain Churchill B. Mehard recently appointed as the Regimental Adjutant of the Eighteenth Infantry, is the youngest officer holding this executive position in the Guard, being only twenty-two years of age.

Captain Mehard is an honor graduate and first Cadet Captain of the Pennsylvania Military Academy. He is a civil engineer and is also taking up the study of law and is one of the promising young officers in the service.

Company I of the Thirteenth Infantry, located at Easton, will be obliged to vacate their armory about the tenth of April, owing to the expiration of the lease. They will temporarily place their State property in a storage room and drill on the street. It is expected that with several hundred dollars which they have accumulated in their company fund from private entertainments, and with the assistance of some of the business men of the town, that they will be enabled to erect a drill shed and store room for Quartermaster's property.

Major B. Rush Field, Captain Fred R. Drake and others are actively interested in the work.

It is stated that Lieut. Colonel Stillwell temporarily in command of the Thirteenth Infantry, will ask Major William S. Millar to take command of Company B after the retirement of Captain Kambeck, which it is expected will shortly take place.

The inspections of the Eighth, Ninth and Thirteenth Regiments have shown marked improvement over last year. Colonel Dougherty was slightly handicapped, owing to the floods, but with a change of dates, the companies were enabled to put up an excellent front.

This was particularly noticeable in Company A of the Ninth Infantry, which paraded their full strength and made a very good impression on the inspecting officers.

Capt. Joseph Adams, Commissary Fourth Infantry, recently returned from Cuba, where he spent several months in mining interests. Capt. Adams states that there is considerable unrest among the ex-soldiers, who are clamoring for a big slice of the $30,000,000 loan.

It is expected that before long the Fourth Regiment will have several changes in its Field. It is stated that Lieut. Colonel Earnest will go on the retired list and that Major Eckman is anxious to wear the silver oak-leaf for a short time, then following the example of his predecessor. Major Mickley, whose health is seriously impaired, may also conclude to leave the service with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. The officers most prominently mentioned in connection with the probable changes are Capt. Case, Company H; Capt. Shannon, Company C; Capt. Spangler, Company D, and Captain and Regimental Adjutant Beary. Colonel O'Neill would have a valuable acquisition in any of these officers being elected to the Field.

Lieut. Edward S. Illig, formerly of Company A. Fourth Regt., will shortly re-enter the service.

The Fourth U. S. Infantry Under Filipino Fire

The drawing represents a tragic incident of a reconnoissance in the Philippines. Lieut. Cheney, of the Fourth Infantry scouts, advanced some miles ahead of two companies of United States Infantry, in an effort to locate the insurgent force, when his small party was surprised by a large body of the enemy that had concealed themselves in a thicket by the roadside. The Americans received the fire that was suddenly poured into them without exhibiting the least trepidation, and though outnumbered nearly twenty to one, they valorously maintained their ground until their heroic leader, Lieutenant Cheney, fell mortally wounded. The Americans were disconcerted by this loss and slowly gave way, but carried the dying officer with them until reinforcements arrived, when the Filipinos were so fiercely attacked that they soon retreated in the greatest disorder, leaving more than twenty of their number dead and wounded on the field.

Pittsburgh will have a gala day on Wednesday, June 15, when the monument erected to the memory of General Alexander L. Hawkins, formerly Colonel of the Tenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, will be unveiled in Schenley Park. The entire Second Brigade comprising the Fifth, Tenth, Fourteenth, Sixteenth, and Eighteenth Regiments of Infantry; the Sheridan Troop and Battery B will be paraded. For a long time it has been the cherished hope of the officers and members of Colonel Barnett's command to have their Philadelphia friends, the Third Infantry, present on this memorable occasion. It will be remembered that the Fighting Tenth was the guest of the Quaker City command while en-route to the Dewey celebration in New York City. The regiment at this time was hospitably entertained and since then a warm friendship has existed between the two commands.

Corporal Dodd, Company I, Twelfth Infantry, is the eldest son of Major Dodd, U. S. A., at the present time located in Philadelphia on recruiting service.

Colonel Elder's command (Fifth Infantry) is making a remarkable showing at the Spring inspections. It is predicted that they will occupy a very high place in the Division this year.

Many officers of the guard will be interested in the announcement that Lieut. Chas. W. Phifer, a popular young officer of the Eighteenth Regiment, was wedded to Miss Verina D. Robinson, daughter of W. H. Robinson of St. Louis, Mo., on the evening of February the eighteenth, at the home of the bride's grandmother in Wilkinsburg, Pa. Rev. John Weidley, of Bethany Lutheran Church, performed the ceremony, and only the relatives and immediate friends were present.

The maid of honor was Miss Anna Phifer, sister of the groom. Capt. J. H. K. Duff, of the Eighteenth, zealously fulfilled the duties of groomsman to his junior officer.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents and the groom was presented with a handsome Morris chair by his fellow employes.

Lieut. Phifer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Phifer, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio. He is a graduate of the Ohio Wesleyan University, a member of numerous secret and social organizations, a faithful and efficient officer and a general favorite. He was formerly a member of the Ohio National Guard.

The popular young couple announce that they will be at home after April 15, at 205 Franklin Street, Wilkinsburg, Pa.
